Alice brings an operator's perspective to foodservice design, with 22 years at leading food service operators managing corporate, university, and senior living dining, and three years at Boelter leading a $36M+ equipment project portfolio from design through installation. Her firsthand knowledge of how kitchens run day to day helps deliver designs that work for the client and the staff who use them.

Project Responsibilities: Alice will serve as project director and the primary point of contact for the client, leading the foodservice team from programming through installation and closeout.

Alice will manage the project schedule and budget, and coordinate with the owner, design team, and general contractor. She will also oversee equipment selection, specifications, and budget estimates, ensuring the design supports efficient, safe, and sustainable day-to-day service.
